American Citizen. His career of glory through life was unstained by crime; and his death was felt as a loss by every individual of that community, whose political existence was the fruit of his exertions.

THE FAREWELL ADDRESS of General Washington is the condensed result of long experienced, matured reflection and strong anxiety for the permanent prosperity of his country. His advice concerning the great importance of maintaining indissolubly the federal Union: the danger of indulging too much in party feelings:—the necessity of supporting public credit at home:—of maintaining public faith in all our transactions with foreign nations: of encouraging foreign intercourse free from foreign attachments:—are so many lessons of prudence which we should do well to bear in constant remembrance. Why therefore should not his legacy of wisdom and affection, be so published, as to admit of being constantly before our eyes? An ornament to our apartments, while it serves as a memento to guide our public feelings, and to manifest that the author lives in our memories?

To make it such, is the aim of the proposed Edition.

The Publishers are determined that the Address shall be printed on paper of the same quality and size as the splendid edition of the Declaration of Independence now engraving, & shall in all respects be a companion worthy that great State paper.

As errors are known from various causes to find their way into the most important writings, the publishers feel it their duty, not only to satisfy themselves, but to satisfy the public, of the authenticity of the copy from which this splendid Edition of the Farewell Address shall be published.

MR. GEORGE BRIDPORT will complete the Design; of which the following is an outline:—The introductory part of the Address, in highly finished ornamental penmanship, shall form the upper part;—the other parts of the plate, shall be appropriate ornaments;—in the centre below shall be engraved, from an historical design for this publication by Mr. Sully the Surrender of the British Army at York-town, October 19, 1781.

The Address itself shall be printed with type of a peculiar and appropriate character, designed for this purpose by Mr. Fairman, and to be cut and cast by our best artists. No more of the type shall be cast than will be necessary to execute this Address: & when it shall be compleated, the type and the matrices in which it was cast shall be utterly destroyed; so that no other work shall ever be executed by the same letter which shall have printed the "FAREWELL ADDRESS" of him who lived and died, first in War; first in Peace, and first in the hearts of his Countrymen.

The paper, of the first quality, 36 by 26 inches, will be made by MR. Amies. The INK shall be carefully prepared, and of the best materials.

The signature of General Washington from which it is proposed to execute a fac simile for this publication, is that which he affixed to the Constitution of the United States, when he signed it as President of the Convention in which it was framed; Thus associating and concentrating some of the greatest events in the life of this great man and in the history of his Country.

The ornamental writing will be designed and executed in the very best manner; the ornamental parts of the design and vignette, will be engraved by G. FAIRMAN: and the Typographical part executed by John Binns. They will take especial care of the execution of their several duties in this respect, and they will call to their aid, all that liberality, zeal and industry can command from the Sciences and Arts, so as to make the "Farewell Address" no mean specimen of the state of the Fine Arts in the United States.

As much progress has already been made in designing and procuring materials for this splended edition of Gen. Washington's "Farewell Address," it is expected it will be ready for delivery, with the Splended Edition of the Declaration of Independence, in the month of December next. That the public may have a more perfect view of the design and style of execution, than can be given in a proposal, of this Tribute to the memory of him who was "a Conqueror for the Freedom of his Country! A "Legislator for its Security! A Magistrate for its Happiness," it is not intended to solicit any Subscsiptions until the Ornamental parts of the plate shall be executed. It will then be submitted for public inspection and public patronage, at five dollars a Copy, payable on the delivery of the Engraving. Philadelphia, July 31.

Exchange & Broker's Office,

Georgetown, District of Columbia.

ROMULUS RIGGS,

AT his office, next door below Crawford's tavern, Bridge-st. Georgetown, will exchange all kinds of Bank Notes on the most reasonable terms.—All persons who may have notes on the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, would do well to call on him, as he is largely in the purchase of that kind of money, and will take it on the most reasonable terms.—Persons travelling to the Western Country may at all times get the Bank Notes of the Western Banks at a fair discount, by calling at his Office. For the information of all persons throughout the U. States, R. Riggs makes it known, that all of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the merchants, and trading to the South and west, to encourage the circulation of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria, as it will at all times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns;—all persons emigrating or travelling to the westward should be very particular and take the Notes of the Banks of the District of Columbia, as they will find them the most current, there being no counterfeits on the District Banks. The Merchants' Bank of Alexandria has long since failed—all persons should be on their guard, as they will be imposed on. August 18

ABSCONDED from the subscriber's service, on Saturday night the 15th inst. Negro woman TREACE or TREACY—she is five feet two or three inches high, about 30 years of age, of a very dark complexion, and when particularly examined is very apt to confound herself.—It is deemed unnecessary to mention her clothing, as she has all of them with her, and being extremely artful, she no doubt will change them and endeavor to pass for a free woman. She is well acquainted in Charles county, Prince George's, Alexandria and the City, as about 5 years ago she made her escape, and was 6 or 7 months about the Lower Ferry, leading to Alexandria, and from thence to Washington City, where she acquired an extensive acquaintance among the Negroes belonging to John Brent, esq.; and the greater part of said Negroes belong now to William and Rober Brent, esqrs. and Mr. Dudley Diggs. Negro Treace has a scar on the back part of her neck, occasioned by a seaton put for the benefit of her eyes, which are very weak at this time. I will give 10 dollars if taken in the county and secured in jail, or if out of the county and secured as aforesaid, so that I get her again, 25 dollars, and all reasonable charges paid if brought home. All persons are forewarned harboring or employing said Negro at their peril, as the law will be rigorously put in force against any offender.

FIFTY DOLLARS REWARD.

I WILL give the above reward for apprehending and lodging in any jail in the District of Columbia, a person by the name of JOHN POST, a Bricklayer and Stonemason, who has been at work for about two months past at Fort Washington, and was discharged on the 7th of September inst.—He says he was born in the state of New-York; is about 5 feet 9 or 10 inches high, and has sandy hair: he had with him an apprentice boy, nearly grown. A few days previous to his leaving Fort Washington he took the liberty of borrowing, in the name of Mr. John Cohagen, from a lady at that place 15 dollars, which was not known till after he left it; and immediately after he was discharged and paid off, he forged two checks in the name of the Subscriber, on the Farmers' Bank of Alexandria, one of which he procured the money for at the Bank, and the other he passed to a person in Alexandria, which was detected and refused.—Previous to his coming to Fort Washington, he worked in the City of Washington, where he said he intended to work again; but it is probable he has not stopped so near the theatre of his villany.

Persons are cautioned against being imposed on by him. BOLITHA LAWS.

Original Miscellany.

POLEMICAL...PHILO-LUCIUS TO H.

The good natured friend who told you, "significantly," that the writer under the signature of H. had some time past received a dressing, was certainly mistaken: for I cannot help thinking your intellectual poverty was completely uncovered and exposed. Lucius is no inhabitant of a school-room, either as scholar or master—and I assure you for him, he does not attempt to teach any thing—not even paragraph writers, as you may have supposed. He has affairs which have necessarily prevented him from seeing your letter published in the Gazette of the 15th inst. or else I think I may venture to assure you, that the novel, elegant and spirited sarcasms contained therein, would not have so long remained without a reply. I pray you, do not understand the conclusion of the last sentence as a compliment to your style: for I assure you I mean the words novel, elegant, and spirited, should be understood according to that mode of writing ycleped irony; which I have no doubt Lucius had in his mind when he spoke of your lucubrations. This caution seems the more necessary, as you do not distinguish between Lucius' sneers and compliments.

It seems exceedingly inconsistent in you, who profess yourself so great an advocate for urbanity of language, to spend your epithets of incivility with so unbounded a prodigality. But I have no doubt Lucius will freely forgive the improprieties into which your rage has plunged you, (as you pledge your honor that this is your first newspaper controversy) for he knows, with every reflecting man, that a new situation creates a flutter of the spirits and the understanding, extremely unfavorable to the proper discharge of our duties, and the decorum of our manners. You tell Lucius, if he will step out of his schoolroom into a blacksmith's shop, "and remark the scintillations that proceed from the stroke of the hammer on the first heat, and then observe the welding on the anvil which follows," he may probably comprehend the distinction between the works of a writer who composes to get "quit of a few ideas," and the labors of one who studies by candlelight. You insinuate that the writing of Lucius is the bar, after it has been united with solidity by the hammer and the anvil, and compare your own essays to the sparks that fly off by the first strokes of the hammer—which every one knows sputter awhile and expire.

You have less wit than I think Lucius is willing to allow you, if you expect to succeed in a contest by playing off a few sparks of impotent heat, when your adversary is armed with a well-tempered blade. With the wild irregularity of a spark that mere heat produces, you burst into the following exclamation.—Why this Lucius is scarcely "even a sciolist, or he would better understand the word he ventures to use; does a person who writes to get quit of a few ideas—does such a person, I ask, lucubrate?"

I think the learned H. himself will admit, upon a reconsideration, that he has met with many persons, (in the long tract of time over which he has already passed, if he find not the example at home) who have not much accuracy of knowledge, or superfluity of ideas, notwithstanding their lucubrations. And from the length of time which elapsed between the letter of Lucius and his answer, one would be apt to think that there had been some night labor in the delivery of his conceptions. But this is not so material. There are some young men without the graceful levity of youth, as there are old men without the sober sense of age. You say "I equally deny the position that there is no distiction between belles lettres and poetry." Lucius, I believe, does understand some little of French; but it is not necessary to be deeply versed in any language to know that every truly poetical publication, must constitute a portion of polite literature: and I think we are agreed that belles lettres and polite literature are synonimous. Lucius did not say that whatever was properly belles lettres must necessarily be poetry: but he maintained exactly the reverse of that proposition. He said whatever was a truly poetical, must, (according to polite acceptation of terms) be a belles lettres publication: which is indubitably correct, your brilliant sciotillations to the contrary notwithstanding.

"To say that I contemn science and metaphysics, is a most wilful misapprehension of Lucius." Again by reference to Lucius it will be seen you do not distinguish the playfulness of laughter from the understanding of seriousness.

You kindly presume "if Lucius reads many French sermons, that when he wrote, he had some dreaming recollection of the famous Bardalow."

——"ion impudence,
Temeraire vieillard, aura sa recompense."

In the second volume of Blair's lectures, (page fifty-eight) which you would have the world believe you have read, the two greatest French preachers are thus characterized. "To Bourdaloue they attribute more solidity and close reasoning, to Massillon a more pleasing and engaging manner." "Bourdaloue is indeed a great reasoner, and inculcates his doctrines with much zeal, piety, and earnestness; but his style is verbose, he is disagreeably full of quotations from the fathers, and he wants invagination." "Massillon has more grace, more sentiment, and, in my opinion, every way more genius." I fancy this citation will show pretty conclusively, that you have not quite so fine a relish for the written compositions of your favorite Blair, as for his oral discourses. And I think the public will be apt to imagine you were dreaming, or in a much less pardonable predicament, when you said Blair was the Massillon of Scotland, and made Lucius dream of "Bardalow."

Lucius did not contend that others ought not, or that he did not see any genius displayed in the painting, or humor in such characters as Dandie Dinmont; but said it was an unaccountable piece of stupidity, (since you do not think the word dulness sufficiently urbane) to say and believe none but a Scotman could properly perceive it. Nor can I help thinking one may very well prefer the beautifully negligent periods of Hume, or the stately elegance of Gibbon, to the silly trash or rather learned lumber of the sixth James of Scotland, whom you somewhat inaccurately call the first, without being supposed to entertain a wish totally to extirpate the native speakers of the "Celtic, Teutonic, and Sclavonic languages."

Not daring to attack the main body of Lucius' periods, except by general abuse, you triumph in having, as you think, surprized an out-post, and taken a poor pronoun prisoner; but even in this petty warfare you shall find yourself defeated. Every body with any pretensions to learning knows that in queen Ann's time, (a period with which you pretend an acquaintance) the pronouns who and which were used indifferently for each other; and that the modern rule is, that who is to be used as the relation of those nouns only which express the name of some rational being.—Lucius spoke of the class (of writers) who you say, &c.—But as I think the class to which he has shown you belong (you acknowledge) write neither for fame nor profit, nor for the instruction of their cotemporaries or posterity, and consequently that they cannot be rational, you have made him but a poor return for his gratuitous civility.

PHILO-LUCIUS.

Mr. Editor,

Moore's poem of Lalla Rookh is universally acknowledged to be excellent. All his descriptions breathe that magnificence which (if the expression will be permitted) is indigenously oriental; more particularly in that part which is entitled "Paradise and the Peri."

But there is another later poem by Moore which, while it displays the versatility of his poetic powers, has not been much attended to in this country.—It is the "Fudge Family in Paris."

That neglect which this very witty and satirical poem has experienced here, arises from there being no key to the names that are either in blank or partly so; and against which the whole force of the satire is levelled. Nothing more pungently severe has appeared in political poetry (if I may use the term) since the "Rolliad," written by Charles James Fox, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and the other wits who formed a galaxy in the opposition, in the years 1787 and 88.

The characters of the Fudge Family, or the dramatis personæ of the poem, (in letters,) are well supported throughout.

The father—Phil—is represented, rather acknowledges himself a hacknied tool of Lord Castlereagh. The son—Bob—combines the character of epicure and dandy—the latter, the cant term for what was formerly the buck, beau, fop or coxcomb.

The daughter—Biddy—is a sprightly romantic girl. The tutor—Phelim Connor—an enthusiastic Irish youth, possessing Utopian ideas of liberty.

Miss Biddy, on her arrival at Dessein's at Calais, lets you at once into her character, which developes itself more afterwards. She writes to her friend as follows:—

"In vain, at Dessein's, did I take from my trunk, [ing "TheMonk;"
That divine fellow, Sterne, and fell read-
In vain did I think of his charming dead ass,
And remember the crust and the wallet—alas! [money,
No monks can be had now for love or for
(All owing, Pa says, to that infidel Boney;)
And though one little neddy we saw in our drive, [alive."
Out of classical Nampont, the beast was

The next letter, by "Phil Fudge," is peculiarly severe as to the arrangement made of Europe by the royal members of this hypocrisy, denominated the Holy Alliance; which affects to affiliate with the Bible Societies; simply a renovation of church and state; and under which the people of the United States are gradually sinking, as will at a future day be seen—the quotation follows:—

"That, as for some few million souls,
Transferr'd by contract, bless the clods!
If half were strangled—Spaniards, Poles,
And Frenchmen—'twouldn't make much odds,
So Europe's goodly Royal ones
Sit easy on their sacred thrones;
So Ferdinand embroiders gayly,
And Louis eats his salmi daily;
So time is left to Emperor Sandy
To be half Cæsar and half dandy."

Then we have Bob Fudge's letter—a professional punster.

"I rise—put on neck-cloth—stiff, tight, as can be— [like me,
For a lad who goes into the world, Dick,
Should have his neck tied up, you know—there's no doubt of it— [it."
Almost as tight as some lads who go out of

Phelim Connor next follows in that wild enthusiasm which belongs to the natives of an aggrieved country.—

"When will the world shake off such yokes? ah, when
Will that redeeming day shine out on men,
That shall behold them rise, erect and free
As heav'n and nature meant mankind should be."

We have then a severe and proper cut at the sudden change which has taken place in France from the splendid military and imposing display of Napoleon, contrasted with the miserable superstition and bigotry of the restored Bourbons.

Biddy writes to her friend; of which please receive the following extract:—

"The next place which Bobby has nearly lost his heart in, [Martin,
They call it the play house, I think, of St.
Quite charming—and very religious—what folly [Dolly,
To say that the French are not pious, dear
When here one beholds, so correctly and rightly, [rightly;
The Testament turned into melo-drames
And doubtless, so fond they're of scriptural facts [five acts."
They will soon get the Pentateuch up in

Here the Pentateuch, or the five books said to be written by that most admirable legislator, Moses, placed in the rank of a play of 5 acts, is wit without profanity, and applies well its severity for producing on the stage subjects sacred.

There are two epigrammatic hits, beyond puns, that I shall mention before closing this subject.

But I must ere this have tired your compositor, your pressmen, and your readers; therefore when I again hold converse with you, these epigrams, or Latin puns, shall be put down for your type.

ACCIDENT TO THE MACEDONIAN.

Extract of a letter to a young man on board the U. S. frigate Macedonian, to a friend in this town, dated Norfolk, 10th inst.

"It has pleased Divine Providence, the Disposer of all human events, to afflict us with a heavy misfortune. The particulars as far as my limited time will allow, I have given below. The scene has left an impression that will never be effaced—and only to him, who suffers not a sparrow to fall to the ground, without his knowledge, and the nautical skill of our commander and officers, is to be attributed that we have outlived the storm.

"As you know, we sailed from Boston on Sunday, the 20th of September. We enjoyed a fine breeze from the N. W. until Friday the 25th, whence the appearance of the weather indicated a blow—the wind veering to the Southward and Eastward. We were under single reefed topsails all night, and at 8 next morning, (Saturday,) we double reefed them and handed the mainsail. At Meridian, per observation, we were in lat. 36 17, long. 68.—Blowing fresh, at 4 P. M. close reefed the topsails, reefed the foresails, handed the mizen topsail, and housed the topgallantmasts. At 4, handed foretopsail and foresail—set the fore and main storm staysails. At 5 blowing very heavy, handed main topsail and hove too. Wind S S E. and across, troublesome sea. At 7, P M. lost a man overboard*—every effort was made to save him, but without effect—At 9, the main storm sail gave way, and the sail went to ribands.

[*William Wilkins, Captain of the mizen-top.]

"At this time the sea was making a complete breech over us—all hands at the pumps—hatches battened down.—Midnight, no ease for the poor Macedonian, which groans, and seems to beg for mercy of old Boreas. The loud roaring of the sea—the whistling of the wind—the shrill pipes—the orders and counter orders, and the necessary vociferations of the officers—rendered it a scene calculated to depress the firmest mind.

"At half past one, A. M. the word was passed that the mainmast was badly sprung and the ship making a great deal of water. All the carpenters were employed in fishing and securing the mainmast, which we expected every instant to see going by the board. At half past 3, the fore storm staysail split to pieces, and we were unable to shew a rag of canvas The ship laboring very much we were compelled to cut away the mizen mast. We cleared the wreck with despatch, and longed most anxiously for day light, which at last made its appearance. But what a prospect! The sea ran mountains high, and seemed every instant ready to engulph us! Our remaining masts tottered, and appeared at every roll, about to fall! At this period word was brought that the seams of the ship were opening fast, and the birth deck covered with water. A consultation was held, whether it was best to heave the forcastle guns overboard, or cut the masts by the board. The last was concluded on—when, at half past 5, the axe was put to the mainmast, and four incisions made, but a second tho't of our worthy commander, stopped any more, and he gave orders to have the topmasts cut away. Volunteers were called for, who cut them away at the imminent hazard of their lives.

"They carried with them the topgallant masts, yards, sails, rigging and every thing else attached to them. We then cut away our lower yards, and nothing remained but the bare stumps of our sprung lower masts and bowsprit—the ship lying a mere hull on the water—and the sea covering us at every surge. What a change from our gallant ship that day week! The wrecks of our pride floating around us, and we ourselves expecting every instant to perish and float with them!

"At 2 P M. the gale abated, and we were suffered to get some refreshment, after standing the deck wet and hungry near 20 hours. We afterwards turned to, cleared the wreck, and proceeded to get up jurymasts. On Tuesday we were able to make sail, stood to the westward, bore away for Norfolk, made the land on the 9th instant, and got into port this day.

"I have delineated to you some of the particulars of this tremendous storm, but only a witness can feel that impression it made."

We hope the Macedonian has found at the Navy-Yard at Norfolk, all the articles necessary for and suited to her immediate re-equipment. It has been one of the circumstances for which the British Naval establishments have been extolled, that they have, at their different Naval Depots, masts, sails, rigging, &c. in perfect preparation for their vessels of every rate that may meet with loss by battle or storm; and this characteristic will be adoped by this country, if it has not been already.

We fear the Macedonian will be too late for a convenient passage to the Pacific Ocean the present season.

Boston, October 20.

Daniel Manley was tried and convicted on Friday last, before the Supreme Judicial Court at Portland, for robbing the Cumberland Bank. Public expectation was much excited upon this occasion—thirty-six witnesses were recognized or summoned on the part of the commonwealth; and it was supposed that the trial would take up several days—but forty minutes only were consumed in the trial, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty, after about ten minutes deliberation.

The Solicitor General, who conducted the prosecution, examined only three witnesses, viz. The Cashier, to prove that the Bank was opened by false keys; and the amount of bank notes, gold and silver stolen from the vault; the prison keeper, Mr. Gerrish, who searched Manley at the time of his final committment for trial, and found upon him several parcels of U. States bank notes, with the binders upon them, which contained the figures of the Cashier, who identified them completely, and testified that the bills and binders were in the same state when taken from Manley's pocket, as they were when stolen from the Bank. A locksmith belonging to Boston, was also examined, who testified that he made a key for Manley in June last, which would suit the lock which was then on the vault of the Bank. The Solicitor General rested the prosecution upon this evidence.

Mr. Longfellow and Mr. Greenleaf, of council for the defendant, objected to the testimony of Mr. Gerrish, upon the ground that there had been a stipulation with Manley, sanctioned by the County Attorney, that no fact should be given in evidence against the defendant which was in any way connected with the finding of the money, of which the Bank had been robbed—but this objection was instantly overruled by the Court. It was explicitly denied by the Solicitor General that the fact of finding the U. S. bills on Manley, by Mr. Gerrish, was in any manner connected with the supposed stipulation above referred to; and it was also denied on behalf of the County Attorney, that the stipulation was of the nature, and to the extent contended for by Manley's counsel.

On Saturday morning sentence was pronounced upon Manley—which was, that he suffer solitary confinement for 30 days, and be afterwards confined to hard labor, in the State Prison, for 12 years.

There were circumstances attending this robbery, and the subsequent confinement of Manley in prison, that are of so atrocious a nature as almost to exceed belief. It is now ascertained that one motive for the robbery was revenge upon the Directors for not discounting some of Manley's notes. It is also a fact, that Manley, after his commitment, provided himself with a pistol, powder and balls, which he kept concealed in his apartment; and which were secretly furnished him by Phoby Dela, his brother-in-law. Some few weeks ago, the prison-keeper, considering it proper to change Manley's apartment in the prison, found this pistol concealed in his writing desk, primed and loaded with powder and ball. There is every reason to believe, that Manley contemplated an escape, before his trial; and that the assassination of Mr. Gerrish would have been no obstacle in the accomplishment of his object.

☞By the return of the commissioners, appointed by the common council of Alexandria, to hold an election for a member to represent the third ward in the common council, in the place of Nathaniel S. Wise, Esq. resigned, I hereby make known that Newton Keene, Esq. is duly elected.

In testimony whereof, I hereunto set my hand this 26th October, 1818.

To Farmers and others.

THE Subscribers, just arrived from England, respectfully inform the public that they have formed an establishment at the upper end of King-street, in the town of Alexandria, where they propose to execute extensively, and in the most improved mode now used, the following Mechanical branches, viz: Mill work, of every kind, threshing machines, wheat fans, with most kinds of machinery, waggons, carts, ploughs, and every other implement used in agriculture—to which they will add the House-Joiner's and Carpenter's Work.

Threshing machines having become generally useful in England and Scotland, it is presumed the American farmers will find it their interest to adopt them:—with the aid of two horses and three men, they will thresh fifteen bushels of wheat every hour. Their wheat fans differ from those in use here, and it is believed they are on a plan better adapted to the object. ☞They invite the public to call and examine their work, the neatness and durability of which, combined with great punctuality in executing any orders they may be favored with, will, they hope, entitle them to encouragement and support.

Valuable Land for Sale.

HAVING more land in the tract on which I reside than I can farm to advantage, I will expose to public sale, on the 5th day of NOVEMBER next, if fair, if not the next fair day, eight hundred acres, divided into lots of two hundred acres: each lot has seventy acres in wood;—of the cleared land one hundred and fifty acres are in clover, and two hundred in rye and wheat. This land is situated ten miles below Alexandria, and is bounded north and east by Accotink creek, which separates the lower part of it from Jonathan Janney's mill, where the Alexandria price can be had for grain.—It is as fertile as any land in the county, and as susceptible of improvement, by clover and plaster, as any I have seen. Persons wishing to view it will call on the subscriber, living at Cedar Grove, one mile below Janney's mill.

The terms will be one-third of the purchase money in hand, and the balance in two equal annual payments. The sale will take place at 12 o'clock, on the premises.
EDGAR McCARTY.
Fairfax co. Va. October 6

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.
September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirious of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep, waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or Auction & Commission Store.

NATHL. P. BIXBY & CO. respectfully inform their friends and the public generally, that they have taken that large and commodious store formerly occupied by the late Mr. Thomas Robinson, nearly opposite the Union Bank, Bridge-st. where they will transact all kinds of business in the Auction and Commission line; and as they are determined to give their exclusive attention to that business alone, those gentlemen who are disposed to employ them, have the best guarantee that they will be fairly dealt by. They flatter themselves that a punctual, diligent, and correct attention, together with their general knowledge of business, will secure to them at least an equal share of public patronage. Their intention is to avoid, as much as possible, retailing goods at auction. They are now prepared to receive goods of every description, to sell at public or private sale, and will attend to sales of property at any place within the town.

Gone to the Southward or Westward,

A YELLOW WOMAN, called Celia Detcher, in the 23d year of her age, about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches high—marks like moles on the right side of her face, which, with several letters on her left arm, were made with india ink. She is about four months gone in a state of pregnancy—followed her husband, Jim Clark, a yellow man, who was purchased from this place and taken away in company with a large number of slaves, about two week ago, by a man of the name of Basset. It is supposed they have gone to the westward: Celia was born free, and had with her a notarial certificate of her freedom, and description of her person. Her mother, the subscriber, is much afflicted by her manner of going away, and desires that any humane people who may chance to meet with her, will persuade her to return, being apprehensive that when she gets into a strange country, where she will be unknown and out of the reach of her friends and those who would be likely to protect her, attempts may be made by some avaricious and unprincipled persons, to deprive her of her liberty, and sell her for a slave. Should any such attempts be made, fifty dollars reward will be paid to any person who will communicate such information as shall lead to the conviction of the offenders, and the recovery of the woman.
HANNAH DETCHER.

PROPOSALS,
By Gideon Fairman, John Binns and Charles S. Parker,
TO PUBLISH
A Splendid Edition of Washington's Farewell Address,
To the People of the United States.

THE world has seen enough of warriors and of Heroes—enough of Statesmen—of men who have guided Armies in the field, or dictated as Sages in the Cabinet, for the exclusive purpose of Ambition. History from its earliest page to the present day, has offered to our contemplation, only ONE WASHINGTON, but ONE MAN, whose dangers in war, and labors in in peace, were undertaken and supported with a single eye, to the benefit of his country; whose wonderful and honorable success, was the plain result of wisdom in design, and valour in execution; whom danger never appalled, nor defeat depressed; who, persevering in the justice of his cause, wooed Victory till he won her: who covetted no reward but the well earned approbation of those whose interest he lived to promote: who renounced all public honors, when they ceased to be the necessary instruments of good to the people, whose gratitude conferred them: who superior to all Monarchs, was content to be called the American Citizen. His career of glory through life was unstained by crime; and his death was felt as a loss by every individual of that community, whose political existence was the fruit of his exertions.

THE FAREWELL ADDRESS of General Washington is the condensed result of long experienced, matured reflection and strong anxiety for the permanent prosperity of his country. His advice concerning the great importance of maintaining indissolubly the federal Union: the danger of indulging too much in party feelings:—the necessity of supporting public credit at home:—of maintaining public faith in all our transactions with foreign nations: of encouraging foreign intercourse free from foreign attachments:—are so many lessons of prudence which we should do well to bear in constant remembrance. Why therefore should not his legacy of wisdom and affection, be so published, as to admit of being constantly before our eyes? An ornament to our apartments, while it serves as a memento to guide our public feelings, and to manifest that the author lives in our memories?

To make it such, s the aim of the proposed Edition.

The Publishers are determined that the Address shall be printed on paper of the same quality and size as the splendid edition of the Declaration of Independence now engraving, & shall in all respect be a companion worthy that great State paper.

As errors are known from various causes to find their way into the most important writings, the publishers feel it their duty, not only to satisfy themselves, but to satisfy the public, of the authenticity of the copy from which this splendid Edition of the Farewell Address shall be published.

MR. GEORGE BRIDPORT will complete the Design; of which the following is an outline:—The introductory part of the Address, in highly finished ornamental penmanship, shall form the upper part;—the other parts of the plate, shall be appropriate ornaments;—in the centre below shall be engraved, from an historical design for this publication by Mr. Sully the Surrender of the British Army at York-town, October 19, 1781.

The Address itself shall be printed with type of a peculiar and appropriate character, designed for this purpose by Mr. Fairman, and to be cut and cast by our best artists. No more of the type shall be cast than will be necessary to execute this Address; & when it shall be compleated, the type and the matrices in which it was cast shall be utterly destroyed; so that no other work shall ever be executed by the same letter which shall have printed the "FAREWELL ADDRESS" of him who lived and died, first in War; first in Peace, and first in the hearts of his Countrymen.

The paper, of the first quality, 36 by 26 inches, will be made by MR. AMIES. The INK shall be carefully prepared, and of the best materials.

The signature of General Washington from which it is proposed to execute a fac simile for this publication, is that which he affixed to the Constitution of the United States, when he signed it as President of the Convention in which it was framed; Thus associating and concentrating some of the greatest events in the life of this great man and in the history of his Country.

The ornamental writing will be designed and executed in the very best manner; the ornamental parts of the design and vignette, will be engraved by G. FAIRMAN: and the Typographical part executed by John Binns. They will take especial care of the execution of their several duties in this respect, and they will call to their aid, all that liberality, zeal and industry can command from the Sciences and Arts, so as to make the "Farewell Address" no mean specimen of the state of the Fine Arts in the United States.

As much progress has already been made in designing and procuring materials for this splended edition of Gen. Washington's "Farewell Address," it is expected it will be ready for delivery, with the Splended Edition of the Declaration of Independence, in the month of December next. That the public may have a more perfect view of the design and style of execution, than can be given in a proposal, of this Tribute to the memory of him who was "a Conqueror for the Freedom of his Country! A "Legislator for its Security! A magistrate for its Happiness," it is not intended to solicit any Subscsiptions until the Ornamental parts of the plate shall be executed. It will then be submitted for public inspection and public patronage, at five dollars a Copy, payable on the delivery of the Engraving. Philadelphia, July 31 tS
